BAKER WINS AS HEPBURN SWEEP BACK

Special Session Will Consider Vale Motion

Sand Filling Into Well, Production Down, Declares Vale

WOULD ASK MONEY BACK

A special meeting of the town council tomorrow at 7 p.m. will consider a motion of Deputy Reeve Joseph Vale and Councillor Wm. Dixon that the town immediately take steps to sink a new well. Mr. Vale gave notice of motion on Monday evening. "I think we have been very indulgent with this well," said Mr. Vale. "It was supposed to cost $11,000. We have already paid $6,900 to the company and $6,300 to other persons. "We are supposed to get 200 gallons a minute. It has now dropped down to 125 gallons. In addition, a lot of sand is coming through. We should ask the company to pay back the $6,900. The other $6,300 cannot be regarded as entirely lost. We have had the use of the water."

TOWN ACCOUNTS PASSED

Accounts passed by the town council on Monday night included: Kenneth Mount, $8.75; Anthony Wolfe, $1.80; Datus Crowder, $42.60; Fred S. Thompson, $19.40; James Sloss, $10.96; Perrin's Flower Shop, $10.

"While I am heartily in favor of it, I think it should be a notice of motion," said Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales.

"I agree," said Councillor W. W. Osborne.

Councillor Frank Robinson suggested a special meeting. Mr. Osborne asked that the town engineer and a company representative be present. "It looks to me very much as if the well is going to fill in," said Councillor Wm. Dixon. "Why shouldn't we look for water ourselves," said Councillor Evans. "Why wait for outsiders to find it, if we know places to look for it?"

Human And Bovine T.B. Are Continual Threats - M.O.H.

Pasteurization Must Be Thorough, Dr. J. H. Wesley States

"The germ of bacillus that invades the human body causing tuberculosis is obtained from cattle and humans and without this germ there can be no such disease," Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., stated this week.

"There is the bovine or cattle strain of the bacillus and the human," said Dr. Wesley. "Though these are much alike, each has characteristics which distinguish it from the other, and they both affect man. Most people get infected with T.B. when young, and yet the disease may not become manifest for many years afterwards, or, what often happens, it may never become active in the course of the lifetime.

"We have tuberculosis of the glands of the neck, frequently seen in children. Nearly all these cases are of bovine origin and are received by drinking unpasteurized T.B.-affected milk."

"We have also tuberculosis of the bones, joints or the stomach and bowels, nearly all of which cases are of bovine origin and received by taking T. B.-infected milk or milk products. On the other hand, nearly all cases of tuberculosis of the lungs are of human origin.

"The prevention of the disease includes: 1. The selection of healthy parentage; 2. The avoidance of T.B. contact; 3. The avoidance of unpasteurized milk. "In this connection it might be mentioned that while the sale of all unpasteurized milk is prohibited in Newmarket by the pasteurization by-law, it does not mean that our milk does not need inspection. And even the inspector's samples sent to the provincial department of health in Toronto are occasionally reported with a very high bacteria count."

"This is a very recent sample was reported as having a 60,000 count, whereas the usual count runs from 5,000 to 10,000. This high count indicated a slip somewhere in the pasteurization, for even pasteurized milk when properly pasteurized will show only a low bacteria count."

Free Training With Pay Is Offered Needy Youths

W. M. Cockburn Outlines Plan Of Federal Government

A scheme for the training of necessitous young men as farmers sponsored by the National Employment Commission, was presented to the town council by W. M. Cockburn, York County agricultural representative, on Monday evening.

"The agricultural representatives are to place unemployed young men from 18 to 30 years with selected farmers for training," Mr. Cockburn said. "The province will pay them $10 a month while training. The farmer will be paid something for training the boys but will give board free, Mr. Cockburn said.

"It's a splendid idea," said Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd.

"It's a good idea, but the working out of it is bad," said Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales. "The boys who are in necessitous circumstances are that way through their own fault. This scheme excludes the boys who would really take advantage of it."

"There's no provision made for boys from 18 to 18 years," said Dr. Boyd. "They go off relief at 16 years."

Mr. Cockburn said that there was also provision for boys going into mining and forestry.

"If we gave this some publicity and got three or four boys, could we be sure of placing them?" asked Reeve Dales.

"No, we would have to interview them," said Mr. Cockburn. "There are only ten for the county."

"Why not get information about other fields?" said Councillor Arthur Evans. "Our boys might be more interested in other lines than farming."

"Let Mr. Cockburn prepare an advertisement and put it in the papers at the town's expense," said Dr. Dales.

"Where could we get the other information?" asked Councillor Wm. Dixon.

"From Mr. McCulloch," said Mr. Cockburn. "He's a member of the

PREVENT FIRES CHIEF OSBORNE ASKS CITIZENS

Fire Prevention Ideas Explained For Fire Prevention Week

DON'T TAKE CHANCES

"Put lighted matches and smokes out before you throw them away," is one of the Fire Prevention week suggestions of Fire Chief W. W. Osborne. "Keep matches where small children cannot reach them. Never smoke in the garage, barn, or attic, nor in bed."

"Remove rubbish, waste papers and all unnecessary combustible materials. Provide metal ash and trash cans. Burn rubbish only in a safely covered brick or metal incinerator. Watch the fire."

"Examine all stoves, furnaces, and smoke pipes to make sure they are safe and well away from woodwork or other burnable materials. Have needed repairs made at once."

"Many fires are caused by dirty or defective chimneys. Have the chimney cleaned regularly, and have all defects repaired."

"Escape the danger of flammable liquid fires and explosions by keeping no gasoline in the house. Do dry cleaning with safe liquids or send the work to the cleaner. Never start fires with kerosene."

"Notify your electrician of electrical trouble. Replace 'blown' fuses with new ones—not pennies. Avoid home-made wiring jobs."

"Teach everyone in the family to be careful of fire, to watch stoves, fireplaces, electric irons and all other possible fire causes, and every day to remove old rags, papers and other rubbish."

"Fireproof your home as far as possible by fire-safe roofing, fire stopping in hollow walls and partitions to stop the spread of flames, and a non-combustible basement ceiling."

"Inquire of your chief, when buying a fire extinguisher, to be sure of getting the right kind. Don't hesitate to ask your firemen whenever you have questions on fire prevention."

"Remember always where the nearest fire alarm box is and how to send an alarm. If telephoning, be sure the address is clearly understood. Use a neighbor's phone rather than one in the burning building."

"Explain to everyone in the house what to do in case of fire, how to put out fire in clothing by wrapping in a rug or blanket, what to do when grease catches fire in the kitchen."

"Save life and property from needless destruction by fire by keeping the principles of fire prevention always in mind and never taking a chance with fire."

GARBAGE PLAN GOES FORWARD

Councillors Frank Robinson and Arthur Evans and Deputy-Reeve Joseph Vale were appointed a committee to bring in details of a municipal garbage collection scheme, at a meeting of the town council on Monday evening. It is expected that the new system will go into operation at the first of the year.

Only 25 Mile Link Is Still To Be Assumed

Province Takes Over Port Perry To Peterboro Section Of Road

PETITION IS PLANNED

The central Ontario highway from Sarnia to Ottawa, via the Newmarket-Aurora district, is almost a fact. Only a small gap of 25 miles, bridging Yonge St. and the No. 12 highway, remains to be assumed by the provincial government.

A movement is on foot to have a petition prepared, carrying the signature of all possible residents of the municipalities concerned, urging the government to take the final step in assuming responsibility for this east-and-west highway.

A provincial order-in-council, passed on Monday, provided for the assumption of the section from the No. 12 highway, through Port Perry, Bethany and Cavan to a point four or five miles south of Peterboro on highway No. 28.

The town council was informed on Monday evening by W. M. Bowes, Port Perry, who said that he has been promoting the highway because he believed it was sound and necessary.

Mr. Bowes represented the Central Highway Association.

"The government by order-in-council today took over the Peterboro to Port Perry section, leaving only a small gap between Yonge St. and the No. 12 highway," said Mr. Bowes.

"The association is pledged to support any proposal of the department to fill up this gap," he stated. "I do not think that the department will take over some step until you give us further route from Yonge St. to Uxbridge as a county highway."

"The minister has said that their main concern is that any new highway be as near straight as possible."

In taking over the Orangeville to Schomberg section, highway department officials said that they would eventually extend the highway to Yonge St., although

THANKSGIVING ADDS TO MARKETING ACTIVITY

Farmers and townfolk alike are looking forward to the Thanksgiving market on Saturday. Buyers will be on the job to purchase produce for the holiday weekend, and a good demand is anticipated for farm products. Farmers, it is expected, will find good prices for both fowl and eggs.

they said it might be necessary to change the route somewhat to avoid rough ground," Mr. Bowes said. "There are hills to the west of you, and it might be necessary to swerve to the south, a mile or so."

"I think that we should put ourselves behind the principle of the road and make no local agitation for a particular route," said Dr. Dales. "I think the candidates, Liberal and Conservative, should be pledged to support completion of this highway."

"There are 30 or 35 north and south highways but only one through east and west highway," said Mr. Bowes.

"Once you get to Orangeville you can travel easily in several directions, but you have to go a long way to get to Orangeville," said Councillor Arthur Evans.

Mr. Bowes said that he had worked for the highway for five or six months at his own expense, and that he had attended 150 meetings, all because he believed the highway was a sound proposal.

"It is reasonable, and it will create its own traffic," said Mr. Bowes.

"I believe you should get your members interested, whoever they may be, and that you then get everybody to sign petitions asking for the highway," Mr. Bowes said. "We have spent $700 in the last year, a good deal of it my own money, and we are asking for a grant for the association."

Dr. Boyd and Dr. Dales promised that the council would make a grant.

"The council voted $50."

MAN ACCUSED OF FUR THEFT 2 YEARS AGO

Two Year Old Theft Is Revised In Police Court Trial Here

DECISION IS RESERVED

Charges of breaking and entering, and of receiving, against Charles Lauffman, following theft of a Hudson seal coat and a caracul coat from the home of H. P. Gilman two years ago, were heard in police court Tuesday morning.

Magistrate L. J. C. Bull reserved his decision until next week.

"These coats disappeared from your house?" N. L. Mathews, K.C., crown counsel, asked H. P. Gilman, Park Ave.

"Yes," said Mr. Gilman.

"Where were you when the coats disappeared?"

"In bed."

"When did you discover that they were gone?"

"On Sunday morning, when we were about to go to church."

"Was there anything to indicate where they had gone?"

"The key was hanging in the lock."

Mr. Gilman said that he had gone to London to get the coats from the police.

"What time did you retire the night in question?" asked H. R. Rose, Toronto.

"About 11 o'clock."

"What did you say about the key?"

"It was hanging in the lock, on the inside, as though it had been forced out of the lock by another key."

Mrs. Shirley Cain, formerly Miss Shirley Gilman, identified a coat in court as hers, one of the two coats that had been stolen.

"How long have you owned that coat?"

"Four years."

"When did you last see the coat before it disappeared?"

"On Saturday night at 12.15."

"You had been out?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Cain said that she had also identified her mother's coat. She stated that it was being re-

HONORED BY KING

Pickering College has received a medal from King George VI in commemoration of the coronation on May 12, 1937. Mr. McCulloch received the medal in recognition of his services as a member of the youth employment committee of the National Employment Commission. It comes to him from Buckingham Palace. The medal is silver, suspended from a blue ribbon, edged with red and white.

Baker Has Majority Over Three Opponents

Victory Parade Gets Going Early As Morgan Baker Wins

MACKENZIE DOES WELL

Following the province-wide trend, North York swept back into office Morgan Baker, Liberal, in the provincial election yesterday.

Early returns indicated a Baker victory. Early in the evening Mr. Baker, with W. P. Mulock, M.P., headed a Main St. parade which celebrated the victory and then went on to other parts of the riding. The Citizens' Band and the R.S.A. Bugle Band were engaged.

Unofficial totals were as follows: Morgan Baker, Liberal, 9,398; Stanley Cleverley, Soc. Lab., 3,101; Alex. Mackenzie, Conservative, 6,966; Kenneth Ross, C.C.F., 976.

Free for the first time in years to participate in an election, Sir William Mulock, former member for this riding and former chief justice of Ontario, visited the Liberal committee rooms here while the returns were coming in last evening.

The new legislature will have 63 Liberals, 23 Conservatives, and four others. The Liberals' were well ahead of other parties in the total vote but polled slightly less than half of the total.

At the Conservative committee rooms speakers from various parts of the riding addressed a meeting that lasted until after midnight. They spoke confidently of victory in the next federal election.

Bank Is Handsome Asset To Main St., Move Saturday

Front And Interior Are Equally Attractive In Appearance

The local branch of the Bank of Toronto moves into a magnificent building on Saturday, opening for business at the new premises on Tuesday.

The building speaks for itself. Situated in the very heart of the business section on the east side of Main St., the new bank building presents a front of beautiful Rama stone from the Orillia district.

The interior is enhanced with walnut fixtures and furniture, strikingly beautiful, all supplied and made up by the Office Specialty Manufacturing Co. of Newmarket.

The floors are of handsome block rubber. The ceiling is finished with a beam effect, and the walls are finished in cream.

The lighting is all indirect, with end-of-the-month work of the staff of six no doubt in mind. For the benefit of the public, entirely, however, is the automatic light control which will keep the bank lighted until 11 p.m. every night and will help to keep the Main St. bright.

The vault is of heavy reinforced steel and cement, with a modern vault door weighing 3,200 pounds, though for all its weight it swings as easily as can be. There is also a safe door on the inside and in addition a day gate made of chromium steel. At night there are three barriers to affording the very latest money will buy in the way of protection to customers' security and safety deposit boxes.

Coupon booths have been installed for the convenience of safety deposit box holders affording privacy in the examination of the safety deposit box contents.

The office is equipped with two tellers' cages, which will enable the bank to give adequate service at all times. A new venture is the installation of a reception room for the convenience of customers and friends who have occasion to wait while other members of the family are shopping.

The basement is finished with a lower vault and ladies' and men's locker rooms, and a large storage room. The apartments upstairs have been entirely remodelled and are equipped with electric stoves and refrigerators. The former apartment at the back of the building on the street floor is being equipped for an office and will be occupied by

Says Opinion Favors Nurse

W.C.T.U. WILL MEET

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at the home of Miss L. Starr, 98 Prospect Ave., on Tuesday at 3 o'clock. Mrs. D. McIntyre will speak on the work of the council at Chataqua.

"Notwithstanding the new case of infantile paralysis that developed a week ago, the schools, with the exception of the Alexander, Muir, have remained open," Dr. J. H. Wesley, M. O. H., stated this week.

"The teachers report the attendance is good and very few of the pupils are absent on account of sickness."

"As it would appear the work of the school nurse is done for the present, the board of health decided to dispense with her services, but it is understood there is a strong feeling among the teachers and trustees of the public schools to engage someone permanently for the work."

CONGRATULATIONS

The separate school, and Rev. Dr. W. D. Muckle, must be commended on the decision to engage a health nurse. The Era has long been urging the desirability of a public school nurse, arguing that a nurse would save her salary many times over in detecting disease or conditions that lead to disease. Only a few weeks ago Dr. J. H. Wesley, our M. O. H., declared that the nurse engaged temporarily during the infantile paralysis epidemic had done invaluable work and urged that she be engaged permanently. The separate school is now showing the way. A little friendly rivalry should result in the public school board taking similar action.

J. W. BROWN

A rather unusual man was J. W. Brown who died early Tuesday following an operation on Monday. Mr. Brown had been associated with The Era for the past year, playing a large part in placing this weekly on a paid-in-advance subscription basis, and in that way meeting a great many of our readers and making a host of friends for himself and for The Era. It was not generally known, however, that Mr. Brown was the writer of the little "School Notes" column by "Pedagogue" which has appeared in The Era for a number of years. In this column Mr. Brown was ever urging more appreciation of teachers, greater sympathy with pupils and more participation in their children's education by parents.

A Diarist

For 50 years past, Mr. Brown had kept a daily diary of his doings. When you hear of someone who keeps a daily diary, you hear of an unusual person, someone who regards his daily contacts and contracts with other men as of more than passing importance. No effort for others is too much trouble for such a person. For a long time past Mr. Brown had helped with the Sunday services at York County hospital and on Sunday while a patient awaiting an operation he helped as usual, singing a solo. On Monday he brought his diary up to the moment of being taken to the operating room.

Teacher And Salesman

Mr. Brown was particularly well liked by the country people and that was because, reared on a farm himself, he particularly understood and liked country people. For most of his life he was a teacher but he found the work of teaching people to like and read The Era even more to his liking. He thoroughly enjoyed his work, believed that he was performing a service to those to whom he sold, and always had a helpful word for all with whom his work brought him in contact. We just hope that The Era has been worthy of this unusual teacher and salesman.

CHRISTMAS STOCKING FUND

If we were to tell you that Christmas is coming, you might be surprised. But we know it is so, having it on good authority from the Newmarket Lions club. We can't tell you if the Lions club have this information from Santa Claus himself or from the children whom you help them help every year. Either source is likely, for the Lions club works in close co-operation with Santa Claus and with the needy kiddies of the town. Anyway, the Lions club has opened its annual appeal for funds to make Christmas a time of jolliment and merriment for all. Your help will be appreciated. Our advice is that you vote early and often, casting your ballots for a merry Christmas into the Lions Christmas stocking.

OVERSET

In making up out of type the pages of a daily newspaper great quantities of news are thrown away every day. A newspaper is always "overset." The "overmatter" is thrown away, and no one is sadder. Some articles are thrown away completely and others have the last few paragraphs chopped off. Incidentally, this is one reason why newspaper stories are supposed to have the story summarized in the first paragraph. When the story has been chopped down and down as successive editions go to press and other news takes the front pages, the remaining paragraph or paragraphs still tell a complete story.

It Frequently Happens

And when all this type is thrown away in a daily newspaper office no one is sadder. Usually it is a dispatch from Tokyo or a not so "hot" story from Ottawa that is thrown away. The writer never knows the fate of his news. Occasionally some local person wonders why that bit of news given to a reporter did not appear in type, but for the most part no one cries over the overmatter daily thrown away in daily composing-rooms. But weeklies have a different problem. Practically all their type is local news, sent in by local persons who may be subscribers, advertisers or correspondents, all people who aren't anxious to have their material left out. Yet local newspapers cannot afford to refuse advertising and they cannot readily run extra pages without previous planning. There are almost tears in the composing-room of a weekly newspaper at make-up time when an overmatter problem arises, as it frequently does. Often there is not time to use much judgment in deciding what is to be left out, but generally speaking the newest material and the material sent in earliest (if there is no contradiction there) get the break.

NEW MARKERS AND NEW HIGHWAYS

Clifford Case, former Conservative member, as reported in The Era last week, after a look at the new car markers, declared that they were worth no more than the new low price Mr. Hepburn is selling them for. It was a clever and amusing remark, which would have had wide publicity if Mr. Rowe had made it, but the fact is that, in spite of the inconspicuous color scheme of the new license plates, motorists will get more for their money in 1938 than they ever did before. The province is ever extending its wonderful highway system. Incidentally, while much paving is still to be done, only 25 miles of the Orangeville to Peterboro highway are still unclaimed by the province.

PESSIMISTS AND PACIFISTS

In an interesting address given at Bowmanville an Oshawa man told of a visit to Great Britain. The people of Britain have changed from pessimists to optimists, from losers to winners, he said, since he visited that country previously three years ago. "They had found their country unable to take its accustomed place as leader and mediator in world affairs. Since that time the tremendous armament program has been started and the country has been blessed with a change in leaders, which combined to re-establish England's prestige and its citizens' spirit." The speaker went on to explain that the "blessed" change was the retirement of Baldwin, "a peace lover, brilliant in home politics but not in foreign," and of MacDonald, "a noted pacifist who before retiring admitted that another course must be followed."

Our Big Chance

To arm seems like the thing to do at the moment and yet there are few of us who do not see the truth in the religion of turning the other cheek. Has that religion failed, or did we fail to apply it early enough? One viewpoint is that if Britain and her allies, notably France, had been ready to disarm following the war, and to treat the defeated countries less harshly, there would be less threats to European peace today.

NOT PARTISAN, JUST WEARY

In its last issue before the election the Fergus News-Record hoped that the Hepburn government would be returned to power, not that it cared whether Liberals or Conservatives won, but so that it need not have to spend another five years convincing another government of the necessity of conservation work along the Grand river.

BABY CLINICS

Dr. James McQuibban, Conservative candidate in North Wellington, brother of the now deceased Dr. George McQuibban, former Liberal member, said in an election speech that 500 Ontario mothers die in childbirth every year for lack of proper care. He suggested that the government should see that they get this care and also advocated establishment of government baby clinics throughout the province. It's rank socialism, of course, but we think he's right all the same.

A PUBLISHER TALKS

The radio broadcast of George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail, was something unusual. We read his address, beginning it with the conviction that the Globe and Mail was not an independent newspaper and finishing it with the thought that perhaps it is. We had thought that the Conservatives were not getting a fair break in the columns of the Globe and Mail, but we finished reading the address convinced for the moment at least that the publisher of that newspaper is to the best of his ability trying to boost the policies which he thinks soundest rather than the party he loves best. The natural course for a newspaper which wishes to remain independent without ignoring politics is to discuss the various issues and to leave the voting to the voters, but the Globe and Mail has chosen to go farther and tell its readers how to vote.

Seasonal Unemployment

One point with which Mr. McCullagh dealt, on which we have heard comment since, is his statement that the greatest need of the workingman is security of employment for 52 weeks in the year (or preferably 50 weeks, we should say). Men should not be faced with the spectre of seasonal unemployment. That is a problem which may be solved. The automobile manufacturer, for instance, has a period of unemployment presumably because he does not wish to make changes in design more than once a year and because a time comes in each year when the public wants to wait for the "latest." So far as automobile manufacturers are concerned, this problem might be solved if the outward appearance of automobiles were not changed every year and often so radically. Perhaps sales would suffer, as people would not be forced to buy new cars because their old ones appeared out-of-date, but the sale of new cars would be steady throughout the year and people might buy more freely knowing that their cars could last them indefinitely if they took good care of them. Probably there are ways of avoiding seasonal unemployment if manufacturers, buying public and governments co-operate.

THANKS FOR THEM KIND WORDS

The Midland Free Press, edited by J. H. Cranston, for 20 years editor of the Toronto Star Weekly, makes the following kindly comment. As we are a little afraid that some of our readers may not see the Midland Free Press, we anxiously reprint the Free Press editorial in The Era:

"One of the most stimulating editorial pages printed in any Ontario weekly is that of the Newmarket Era. We wonder if the people of that locality realize what an able editor they have in Mr. Andrew Hebb. In defending itself against the charge that it had departed from independence in criticizing the new Hepburn liquor policy the Era says: 'We do not believe that it is the business of good newspapers to give blind support to any government either Liberal or Conservative. . . . Governments need criticism and plenty of it, and to urge on Mr. Hepburn the spending of money for temperance education comes well within the bounds of fair criticism. There were Conservative governments and we criticized them. There were Liberal governments and we criticized them. There shall be Conservative governments again and we shall criticize them. We can't help having opinions and we believe that it is our business as a newspaper to express them. Anyone who disagrees with our editorial page opinions is invited to make use of our news columns, with signed letters or interviews, to tell us wherein we are wrong!'"

Mrs. Charles J. Smith is visiting her mother in Toronto for a couple of weeks.
Mr. F. W. Scott of Kingston College spent Monday night in town calling on old friends.
Mr. B. F. Reesor is spending the week in Cleveland, having taken in the excursion.
Rev. Mr. Webber preaches in Montreal on Sunday, having the honor of being invited to that city.
Rev. Mr. Rankin of Aurora is expected to preach here in the morning and Rev. Mr. Idle in the evening, in consequence.
Mr. Joshua Bogart never forgets the boys and his name will ever be held by them in grateful remembrance. He added another testimony to his generosity yesterday morning by depositing a large and well-filled market basket of delicious snow apples among the boys, for which they desire to return sincere thanks.
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Roche, of Toronto, were in town over Sunday. The latter intends spending a couple of months at her old home on Prospect Ave.
Mrs. Beckett had the honor of being selected as judge on fancy work at the Collingwood Fair, and her decisions gave such general satisfaction that she was highly complimented on completing her task.
Mr. A. Lewis of Yonge St. left on Friday night for Michigan to spend ten days with his brother-in-law.

So a 25-penny limit has been placed on fine payments.

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville

Speed Complex

There is a car which passes our home frequently—I do not know its driver—whose passing always leaves me with a queer feeling in the pit of my stomach.

It touches the hill to the south of us, then it seems to glide through the air, lands on the hill to the north of us, and with a swirl of dust—is gone.

In its brief moments of passage a thousand thoughts accompany its flight—what if there should be a child on the road, or a car coming up the hill, or a horse-drawn vehicle which could not move fast enough to let this "flying dutchman" of the road go by.

I suppose if I had been a child of this generation, speed would have no terrors for me, although, and alas that it should be so, children are so often the victims of those who lose all sense of life values, in their craze for swift going.

But even as a child, the swift dropping of an elevator—that holds good yet—or the smooth rush of a toboggan, made me feel as if I'd left my heart where I started from, and induced a breathlessness that it took me minutes to recover from.

I think the worst experience of this sort I ever went through was years ago at Fitzroy Harbor. I was visiting friends in Annapolis, and my hostess said, one morning, "Some of the young people are going out to Fitzroy Harbor today, to see the logs go down the chutes, and they will call for you." "Chutes," thought I, "I wonder," but as my ideas on the subject of logging were a bit hazy, I made no objection, and as the morning was lovely, a drive—horses and a wagonette, if you please—was tempting.

So, I made no objection, but joined the gay little crowd, and off we went. Arrived at our destination we found that many more had made this the occasion for a picnic.

Great rafts of logs, were being driven into the narrow steep chutes, to strike the water below with a crash that buried the front part out of sight. "Isn't that swell," remarked a boy beside me, "it'll be our turn soon."

"Eh," I gasped—"we're to go down on those?"

"What else did we come for?" demanded he, indignantly. So, remembering we can only die once, I went with the others, to be herded onto a raft on which we were placed on the big beams which bound the logs together. It was a gay scene—the raftsmen were French Canadian and their gay neckerchiefs, spiked boots and bright shirts made a lively scene.

One wonders—and wonders.

They were not any too happy to have the responsibility of carrying me, but they were made a virtue of necessity. We were safely settled on the rafts as they lay in the quiet water, some distance above the chute.

Then suddenly, we began to move—at first slowly, then with a horrible, smooth quickening of motion, and suddenly the two men with their long poles, stood alertly at attention and were between the walls, and dropping the poles, they fell finally into the swirl of water below.

When I opened my eyes, I found I'd been clinging with a death grip to an utter stranger, on one side, while some one was clinging to me, more closely than a brother, on the other.

Once was enough for me, but the boys went up and down time after time. It was their last chance, for one of the rafts, splitting, a very serious accident was narrowly averted, and riding there was forbidden.

When I wanted to learn to drive a car, I had exactly the same feeling as going down that chute—that I'd have to close my eyes, if I saw another car coming which to say the least, would not have helped anybody, in the resulting confusion.

All this came into my mind as I watched a sewing machine demonstration at our last institute meeting. I looked in wonder and awe at all the different things which were being done, and all as if a sewing machine were not exactly like a horse which aches to run away.

If I attempt to sew anything but a perfectly straight seam on a machine, my breath goes, and I feel the machine will just take things and run amok.

I wonder if there is any way in which one can conquer this speed fear?

I have no desire to revert to horse and buggy days—and, anyway there does not seem time to go slowly, but when we look at the man-made birds tearing over our heads, the cars flying along on our level, the submarines flitting through the ocean depths and the whole mad, ceaseless hurry of work, of play, of hate, of passion and of war, one wonders what it would be like—whether it would do any good, if the whole earth—the people on it—were compelled to be quiet for a week, would they get a more normal view of things?

Would sanity replace the insanity of wars, that seem intended for no purpose but to slaughter the innocents and lead to more war.

One wonders—and wonders.

STUDY GUIDES

Last winter the study group method of adult education proved very successful in our experiment under the auspices of Pickering College Community Extension Service. Preparations are now getting under way for a re-launching of the groups and the formation of new ones.

Except among people who have had considerable experience with study groups, there is bewilderment as to procedure. To merely provide booklets on the subject of study is not enough. Some further guidance is usually necessary.

In an effort to supply this need in the latter part of the past winter we experimented with several questions on the subject under discussion. A sheet with five or six questions bearing directly on the subject would be provided for both the leaders and members of each one could read the reference material and think about the questions suggested. No matter how inexperienced the leader, he could carry on discussions with the questions as a guide and a last support. At the same time there was no limit to the initiative or originality of either leader or members. Furthermore, the questions tended to keep the group from wandering at too great a distance from the subject chosen.

The little paper with its questions was the forerunner of the study guides which the extension is now preparing. A sheet will carry a group of important statements about the special subject—for instance, a study guide on "Standards of Living" may quote the statement of last year's Farm Youth Congress, a booklet on rehousing and a David Grayson study of rural life. Next will appear several questions on standards of living, usually bearing on the foregoing statements. A list of references to source material in books, booklets or other publications will complete the sheet. The whole plan is so simple that it can be operated at very small cost.

water for power, and they look like kids on their sides, huge wooden frames instead of wheels, and in some cases like shapes.

A very pretty fountain adorns the centre of the square and the driveway was decorated for the ceremony of opening the new highway.

On our return trip we stopped at Trout Lake to visit with our friends, a great friend of the north and a driving force in the past for the United Farmers of Ontario. Mrs. George Souther and her family, she and her husband, Scotch gentlemen, still live on a 100-acre farm, elevated with a fine garden and lawns as one would see in the east. A herd of 14 pure-bred Shorthorn cattle is 75 per cent ready for milking, the son now directing the farm activities.

Mrs. Souther was one of the members of the northern Road Committee at the time of the first and did valiant work during these distressing times. That was one of the sad sights, to see the remains of the forest for hundreds of miles just a few burnt timbers of the trees standing amidst a new growth of brush and a few fire rangers' cabins. The sheep pens at North Bay is quite plain, seen from this road.

On Monday morning we got a thrill from seeing the town and the village of Callander. The grounds were packed with cars, like the C.N.E. fields, but everything is carried on in orderly fashion. The five wee girls were dressed in biege coats and tams, white shoes and rubbers, and little green gloves for there was a cold wind blowing, and unaware of observers played with their toys. A trip to Callander is well worth while. A couple of hours of course, see everything of interest, but a drive of 445 miles in three days becomes tiresome and we were glad to get back to old Ontario about 4:30 Monday afternoon.

On their return, we learned it was only seven miles to Temiskaming, so on we went. This town is practically owned by a private paper and pulp company and about 90 per cent of it is in Quebec, so we crossed the narrow bridge over the boundary, saw the dark waters of Lake Temiskaming, the town and a couple of miles of hunting ground, while the ladies cleared up and rested.

HE WAS ALWAYS TIRED AND ILL

Three Complaints Gave Him a Miserable Time

Suffering from three complaints—disordered kidneys, sciatica, and rheumatism, how could this man be anything else but always tired and ill? This is what he writes:

"Up to a month or so ago, I had suffered continually from kidney disorder, sciatica, rheumatism, and generally felt off colour. I was constantly tired, and under medical supervision. I tried many remedies, but without effect until I gave Kruschen Salts a trial. In four weeks, Kruschen has brought about a complete transformation. I have a healthy appetite, and once more feel that it is good to be alive."—S.V.N.

The kidneys are the filters of the human machine. If they become sluggish, impurities find their way into the blood-stream, and the seed of half-a-dozen common ailments is sown.

The scientific combination of salts in Kruschen quickly coaxes the kidneys back to healthy, normal action. Soon your ailments are relieved and life becomes a joy again.

MAPLEHILL NURSES GO TO NEW HOSPITAL

Young People's meetings begin on Thursday evening of this week at 8 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all who care to come each week at the same time.

The monthly meeting of the Dorcas Society will meet again this month at Mrs. B. Plummer's on Thursday, Oct. 14. The meeting will start at 2 p.m. Roll call is to be answered with a verse of scripture containing the word "praise".

Mrs. A. Knights returned from her visit to Toronto and her sister, Miss C. White, accompanied her and is staying for a few days.

Mr. Jack Knights of the Kapuskasing experimental farm came home last Saturday for some holidays.

Miss Phyllis Marritt has accepted a position as nurse assistant at the new government orthopaedic hospital where children crippled from infantile paralysis are cared for. She reports for duty on Oct. 4.

Miss Winnifred Wetherall of Pufferlaw was visiting here on Sunday. She is also going to the new hospital as a nurse assistant.

TELEPHONE TALKS IN THE WATSON FAMILY

"They're right here, Muriel. I'll send them home now!"

Don and Patsy Watson love to call on their Dad's Aunt Mary. Scarcely a week goes by when they don't drop in at least twice, for stories and cookies. So, on any afternoon, when they are later than usual in getting home, their mother doesn't worry. She simply waits till the deadline and then calls up Aunt Mary. This is just one of the things that makes the telephone indispensable to the Watson household. It saves so much anxiety and such a lot of work that Mrs. Watson wouldn't be without it.

(The rates for residence telephone service are surprisingly low—only a few cents a day. You really cannot afford to be without a telephone.)

SUTTON WEST SUTTON PUBLIC SCHOOL CLOSES

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McGill of Newmarket visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Gilroy, over the weekend.

Mr. Alan Hurst spent the weekend in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Todd of Toronto spent the week with the latter's mother, Mrs. Geo. Taylor.

Mrs. G. B. Corke is visiting Miss Jean Lyall this week.

Mr. Ross Robertson left this week for Niagara Falls, N.Y., where he is spending his holidays.

Fire broke out on Saturday morning in the home of Alfred Porte, on the baseline, completely destroying the house and contents.

The death of Mr. Edward Cuthbertson occurred on Saturday, after a lengthy illness. The funeral was held Monday, Oct. 4, from his late residence.

Owing to a case of paralysis in the vicinity, last week, the public school is closed until after Thanksgiving.

CEDAR VALLEY FEWER ATTEND MARKHAM FAIR

Mr. and Mrs. Howard McClure, Mrs. Chas. Brandon, Jr., and Mrs. Jesse Lundy spent Saturday afternoon at Markham fair. They report that the exhibits were splendid but the attendance smaller than usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brandon, Sr., spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. MacFarlane near Warkworth.

Mr. Ted Lundy from Port Sydney visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lundy, over the weekend.

Mr. Chas. Brandon, Jr., and Mr. Ray McClure were in Penetang on Saturday.

Five men from Mount Albert Telephone Co. are repairing the telephone lines around Cedar Valley in preparation for good winter service.

Wesley Lundy preached both morning and evening at the Church of Christ on Sunday. The sermonettes next Sunday evening will be given by Harry Brammer and Percy Hutchinson.

A Trip To Niagara Falls

BY DOREEN FUNNELL

It was while I was visiting Toronto that my friends and I decided we would motor to Niagara Falls. So, one Saturday night we said we would go on the morrow.

We phoned up some of our friends and invited them to come along and enjoy the trip also, and packed our lunch for the next day.

We left Toronto about 8 a.m. There were two cars, each laden with six passengers. We passed very little traffic on a Sunday morning, except a few church-going.

Going through Sunnyside we noted such a contrast, comparing it on Sunday with a week day, with sports, amusements and "whoopie stuff" closed.

As we proceeded to Mimico, then on to Long Branch, more cars began to pass us and we also noticed the distinctive difference from the city air and the sweet smelling country air and the cool breeze blowing across the lake. As we went on, taking Highway No. 20, going through Port Credit I noticed the fish smells. It reminded me of an article I read in one of the dailies the other day of Yarmouth, England and the fish fannies preparing the smoked kippers and bladders.

I decided from hence forth that I wouldn't like to be one of the lassies.

We travelled on, looking at factories and considering how it would be without them and the employment they are giving.

Next we came to Oakville, a nice quiet little town with many beautiful homes in their lovely grounds, owned by many of the financial magnates of Toronto.

As we went on, going through the fruit belts, we were nearing the Falls and we began to hear the roar and rush of the water, which reminded us of an impending thunder storm.

We arrived at Niagara about 11.30 a.m. As we viewed the scenery of the world-renowned Falls, I was amazed at the huge quantity of water continually falling and rolling smoothly over the brink, roaring down like thunder, and the spray and mist rising as it falls into the swirling rapids, then down the river into Lake Ontario to pass into the great St. Lawrence River and thence on to the sea.

After viewing the lovely scenery we found a picnic pavilion and we all had big appetites after the long drive. After consuming our meal we were again ready for an optical feast.

We strolled through Victoria

Park, which is a picturesque scene of gorgeous flowers and ponds of water with lilies growing in them—such a lovely sight for a feast on the eye. There are flowers of every description, both beautiful and rare, with lovely green lawns surrounding them.

We looked around the great hydro power station that supplies us with light and power. We could not go in as it was closed for Sunday. There were several flumes that feed the turbines (I think that's what they all them) as the water rolls out all churned up, reminding one of foaming soap suds like mother's washing in the electric washer on wash-day. As I gazed at the water it passed through my mind that the power that generates from there lights our homes, streets, factories and has many other uses too numerous to mention.

After a little rest we still wanted to explore so we decided to go to Buffalo. It was a lovely drive as we went along the banks of the Niagara River. In the river we observed some Indian derrick.

Arriving at Bridgeburg, the gateway to Buffalo by way of the peace bridge, we found time was travelling fast so we decided to go to Crystal Beach instead and to go to Buffalo some other time. We had heard a lot about Crystal Beach and we thought it would be nice to go there. Going through Fort Erie we noticed there were more American cars passing us than Canadian cars.

Arriving at Crystal Beach, we parked the two cars and started to explore the place. We found it a nice place, the amusements, of course, were closed as it was Sunday. The beach itself is a quiet, select place and very clean. Bathing is charged to go on the beach. There were very pretty rockeries in the grounds, with many different flower beds.

After exploring the place we thought we had better start back to Niagara Falls as we intended to have our supper there.

We all enjoyed the pretty drive. We arrived back in Niagara and consumed the remains of our lunch and found it was time to start back to Toronto.

Darkness was closing in on us as we began nearing Toronto. Lake Ontario looked very lovely, indeed with the moon above reflecting itself upon the water.

It was about 11.30 p.m. when we arrived in Toronto. We sped to our domiciles to feed our famished appetites after the long drive and talked of our tour. We went to bed tired, but not exhausted, to enjoy a night's repose.

POLICE COURT WAS RUSHING TO HOSPITAL

J. F. Hartz and Co., Toronto medical and surgical supplies firm, were fined $3 and costs for driving at 45 miles per hour on Eagle St., in police court Tuesday morning.

"The driver told Constable Mount that he had a rush call to York County hospital, and Constable Mount phoned the hospital," N. L. Mathews, K.C., for the crown, stated. "The hospital said they were glad to have him get there, but that there wasn't a rush."

Edward S. Pearson was fined $10 and costs for 43 miles an hour on Eagle St. Constable Kenneth Mount laid the charge.

Three other motorists, all travelling 43 miles an hour on Eagle St., had not been served and did not appear.

Robert Brooks pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy. He was fined $10 and costs or seven days.

"This man was down at the north end of the town," said Constable Kenneth Mount. "He was in a church and went to sleep. After the service, they couldn't get him awake. I went down and by that time they had him outside. I found this bottle of rubbing alcohol on him. I understood that he had previously been going from house to house begging clothes."

"Your honor, I was using it for rubbing purposes," said the accused man.

"Was there any evidence that he was drinking?" asked Mr. Mathews.

"If the smell of alcohol and he was breathing heavily," said constable Mount.

"He admitted to me that he had been drinking the rubbing alcohol," said Constable James Sloss.

"He said he bought it at a drug store in Toronto."

Mr. and Mrs. Will Essland and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Parker of Rob Roy visited Mrs. Essland's sister, Mrs. C. Fawcett, over the weekend.

The service in the United church will be at 2.30 on Sunday instead of at 7 p.m. as is customary on the second Sunday in the month.

The anniversary and harvest home services in the United church will be on Oct. 17. Rev. W. D. McDonald of Agincourt will preach at both services, 2.30 and 7 p.m.

Mr. John Thompson has returned home from New Brunswick, where he was employed during the summer months.

Miss Bessie Evans is spending a few days at home after a tonsil operation.

Will Hartz of the United church will hold a fowl supper in the basement of the church, followed by a good program, on Oct. 20.

Belhaven

Belhaven Union Sunday-school opened again last Sunday. Preparations for a rally day service next Sunday include some from Keswick United Church Sunday-school as well as several numbers by local members. All are welcome to attend and their assistance to make this service helpful will be appreciated. The hour for opening is 3 o'clock on Sunday.

The W.M.S. rally meeting held in Sutton United Church last Thursday afternoon was very successful. The speakers were very fine and there was a good representation of the different societies from Aurora, Newmarket, Queensville, Keswick, Ravenshoe, Bethel and Sutton.

Next Tuesday, October 12 at 2.30 p.m. the Belhaven Women's Institute hold their regular monthly meeting in the community hall with Zephur Women's Institute providing the program. Belhaven members are all requested to kindly help with refreshments. Supervisors: Mrs. Harland Huntley, Mrs. M. Sedore, Mrs. F. A. Locke.

This is the fifth day of October, and this vicinity has had no frost yet to freeze the pumpkins, vines, and tomato plants, flowers, etc., and of course the little town keep on growing into big ones.

Mrs. Ross Cunningham of Toronto visited her sister on Sunday.

A public meeting of the Conservative party was held in Belhaven community hall last Friday evening.

Belhaven public school is open as there is no reported sickness among the children of this community.

The Belhaven Junior Farmers and Junior Institute are opening their regular monthly meetings on Tuesday, Oct. 12, at 8.15. The boys will have a special speaker and a good program is being planned for the girls.

Ansnoerveld

Miss E. Havinga, R.N., of Albany, U.S.A., is spending a week's holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Havinga.

Miss Elsie Havinga of Toronto was visiting her parents over the weekend.

Mr. J. Nolan of Bradford escaped a serious accident when he was turning his car around and backed up too far and nearly went into the canal. Mr. DeLong's tractor pulled him to safety.

Mr. H. Horlings has returned to Chatham for the winter.

Sunday-school started again last Sunday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Announcement has been made of the coming wedding of Miss N. Rupke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rupke, Ansnoerveld, to Mr. A. Snaep, of Toronto, on Sunday, Oct. 17, in the Christian Reformed church, Rev. J. S. Balt officiating.

Wife—"No, I didn't sew a button on your pants. I was too tired. Which is more important, any way—your wife or your pants?"

Husband—"Well, there are places I can go without a wife."

Quality printing at low cost is offered by Era printers.

WEDDING HELD AT EVERSLEY

(Sept. 30)

Eversley was formerly known on the postal guide, but has faded away since the rural mail left it stranded. The writer is not even sure whether the familiar Eversley P.O. is still before the store which nearly closed when the mail was taken from it, but the Misses B. and M. Gellatly still carry on courageously.

In the years gone by, Eversley consisted of a store, a church, a blacksmith shop, a wheelwright's shop, a cheese-factory and several houses. The large store and buildings have gone long ago; the Baptist church was removed to King City, the wheelwright's shop was closed when Robert Reddick passed away, and the blacksmith shop was taken down after Alex Hurst left it and moved to Aurora to attend to windmills, etc. The cheese-factory, for half a century famous for its cheese and cheesemakers, also disappeared, and left Eversley to quietly plod along on its farms.

And there are farms! Eaton Hall Farm, with its beautiful lake and forests, prize cattle and flowers, is a community in itself. Across the road is the Bovair farm, north and adjoining is "Eversley Farm", owned by A. W. McLennan, a bond broker of Toronto. Still north and adjoining is "Wood Dale Farm", now tenanted by Mr. Nelson, with Mr. Kemp, a retired bank manager, living in the bungalow. Mr. Beauleure, a headliner for the Toronto Star, lives in a small cottage on the north west corner, and Claude Elmley, brother of Col. Elmley of Aurora, lives in the former Cairns' home, just opposite Wood Dale Farm. So with the farmers around, they form quite a social community.

This is Eversley North. Eversley South will stand over for another introduction.

Last week Mrs. McLennan had as a guest, the twelve-year-old daughter of Dr. Blatz of Toronto. Gerry enjoyed her visit, and certainly had a good time with Mrs. McLennan and her mother, Mrs. Morrison.

Eaton Hall Farm is busy with builders, rebuilding the great barn which was burned down last spring. An Aurora building company has the job, and the work is being carried on expeditiously with skilled workmen following the designs of the former structure.

Mrs. J. F. Scott paid a much appreciated visit to her niece, Miss A. Ferguson, of "Scots Wha Hae". The late Rev. J. F. Scott's home is in Eversley, and Mrs. Scott now lives on Lundy's Lane, Newmarket.

Mrs. Gellatly grows a yellow variety of tomatoes. Recently she had two tomatoes hanging from one stem. They weighed two pounds. Three others weighed two and a half pounds each and a large yellow and a large red which she had kept out for seed weighed one pound each. The red tomato was the larger, but the yellow was more solid. They are a fine table variety.

Rose Ella Anderson, younger daughter of Mr. Thomas Anderson, was married last Saturday afternoon to Arthur Male. The marriage was solemnized at the bride's home, Rev. Mr. Worrall officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely period princess frock of French ivory satin. Her long tulle veil was caught in cap effect with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of pink talisman roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Lily Anderson, as maid of honor, wearing a flowered chiffon frock in tones of wine and soft blue, with wine accessories, and Mrs. William Young, sister of the groom, who wore pale blue chiffon with blue accessories.

Miss Joyce Young was junior bridesmaid in an empire frock of pink satin, with a band of flowers in her hair. The bridegroom was supported by his brother-in-law, Mr. William Young. At the reception following the ceremony, Mrs. George Ingelven of Newmarket, aunt of the bride, received with Mrs. Male. A delicious buffet luncheon was served to the forty guests.

For going away the bride wore a tailored suit of blue wool, with grey accessories. After a trip to Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. Male will reside in Toronto.

Rose came from Newmarket when quite a little girl, and she and her sister, Lily, have grown up in the community and have even splendid service in All Saints' church activities. She will be greatly missed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Jefferson, Marion and Bruce, and Miss J. Jordan visited Mr. and Mrs. Horbert Webster of Kottloby on Sunday.

Mr. A. Edwards spent Monday in the city.

Mrs. R. Webster and Mr. C. Webster of Toronto visited Mr. and Mrs. F. Webster on Sunday.

HOLLAND LANDING MARK HARVEST HOME ON 17TH

Mr. and Mrs. Will Essland and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Parker of Rob Roy visited Mrs. Essland's sister, Mrs. C. Fawcett, over the weekend.

The service in the United church will be at 2.30 on Sunday instead of at 7 p.m. as is customary on the second Sunday in the month.

The anniversary and harvest home services in the United church will be on Oct. 17. Rev. W. D. McDonald of Agincourt will preach at both services, 2.30 and 7 p.m.

Mr. John Thompson has returned home from New Brunswick, where he was employed during the summer months.

Miss Bessie Evans is spending a few days at home after a tonsil operation.

Will Hartz of the United church will hold a fowl supper in the basement of the church, followed by a good program, on Oct. 20.

In Memoriam

Risebrough—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Mary Risebrough, who passed away October 9, 1935. Two years have gone and still we miss her.

Never shall her memory fade, Loving thoughts will always linger, Around the grave where darling mother lies, She has gone to heaven before us, To that bright and happy land, Where no hearts are worn and broken.

But will form a happy band, Husband and family.

McKrell—In loving memory of Frederick J. McKrell, who passed away October 9, 1935. He is gone but not forgotten.

In our lonely hours of thinking, Thoughts of him are always near, Days of sadness will come o'er us, Friends may think the wound is healed, But they little know the sorrow That lies beneath the heart concealed. Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. W. W. Osborne wish to express their sincere thanks to their many friends and neighbors for the kind expressions of sympathy and floral tributes extended during their recent sad bereavement.

High School Athletes Will Compete Friday

Teams To Be Made Up Of Seniors, Juniors Of Both Sexes

NO INTER-SCHOOL MEET

Aurora's high school field meet, scheduled to be held here on Friday, will take a new form. The Era learned from Principal J. H. Knowles on Monday. Teams have been selected and each team is made up of seniors and juniors of both sexes.

The cheering that will be heard on Friday, therefore, is likely to be done by a group of senior boys applauding the efforts of a junior girl sprinter or by a group of grade nine lads, lauding the accomplishment of a senior jumper. The plan is the same as that which has been in effect at De La Salle College, it was stated.

So far as Aurora is concerned there will be no inter-school athletic meet this year. It is unlikely that there will be any inter-school meet so far as the

CITIZENS' BAND PLAYS AT BRADFORD'S FAIR

The Aurora Citizens' Band journeyed northward on Saturday afternoon to take part in the Bradford fair.

"They treated us well, and we had a fine time," Roy De La Haye, leader of the band, stated. "We were given a splendid supper at the end of the afternoon."

Other schools in the group are concerned, either, as neither Richmond Hill, Markham or Newmarket are understood to be very keen on the get-together.

"There are two reasons why Aurora will not participate in the usual inter-school field day," Mr. Knowles stated. "First, in view of the epidemic of infantile paralysis we are anxious to avoid the mingling of students in different districts."

"Secondly, the late opening of the schools has made it advisable to make the most of what time there is left."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Verna Bryan, R.N., of Toronto, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Robert Bryan, Yonge St., for a week.

Dr. E. J. Thompson was the guest speaker on Sunday evening last, at the Kettleby anniversary service. Rev. Mr. Strapp took the service at the Aurora United church.

Miss Margaret Bilbrough, R.N., is expected home from New York this week.

Mr. Phil Fingold left Saturday evening on a motor trip through the north country.

A miscellaneous shower was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Leva McDonald, when the young ladies' auxiliary of the Presbyterian church gathered to honor Miss Martha Bates, a bride of this month.

Martha has been very active in church work, and for some years has been employed in the Imperial Bank here.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Caruso have returned from a trip to Kirkland Lake.

Mrs. J. Elliott entertained at a quilting on Tuesday.

Mrs. J. Stuart has returned from a motor trip to North Bay.

Miss Grace Morgan of the North Bay normal school called on friends in town on Tuesday.

Junior Puck-Chasers Look For Big Season In Hockey

Many Of Last Year's Aces Still Eligible For Junior Squad

Building on last year's group-leading junior hockey squad, Aurora hopes to have a team this year that will out-shine all previous records, Bert Tunney, manager of the puck-chasers in 1936, told The Era this week.

While some of the boys have graduated into intermediate ranks, many of the team are still eligible for junior competition. Among these are Bill Wilson, Hugh Main, Bruce Frost, John Atkinson, Gordon Bone, Aubrey Barker, Joe McGee, Clarence James, Allen Wrightman, Joe Tunney and Allan Ferguson.

In addition to these, the hockey executive hopes to line up a goodly number of newcomers.

LIBRARY BOARD MEETS

Members of the library board met in the council chambers on Monday afternoon. A number of the better books in the non-fiction class should be purchased, it was decided.

The club had an enviable record last season and expects to make an even better showing this year.

A hockey meeting is being held in the town hall on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. All interested in hockey whether from an executive or playing standpoint are urged to attend.

The club is particularly anxious to hear from any hockey-playing enthusiasts who intend to try for the team for the first time this year, and they are invited to hand in their names at the Monday night meeting.

ABOUT TOWN

A Cheer for the D. of A.

We've often wondered why poetic pens have been so slow to splutter ink in praise of the department of agriculture. Perhaps it's difficult to find a word to rhyme with agriculture. Mayhap our poets lack that sense of values needed to put that necessary dept. into their verse.

Or Maynothap

Personally, we think the agricultural department is peachy. Whether we have a carbuncle coming to a head or a cabbage that isn't, we rush off to the dept. and get a bulletin. It always helps.

Rambling about Aurora's boulevards, we've become impressed with the number of folks who keep chickens. Or is it the chickens who are supposed to help keep the folks? Anyway, it had the result of sending us, on the run, to the department of agriculture.

How To Keep A Chicken

We are now in possession of bulletin 379—"Farm Poultry"—112 pages of instruction on how to poultry. And everything was well until we came to page four and tripped over the heading, "The Art of Feeding."

"There is something in the art of feeding," the writer states. He's got something there. The birds may like or dislike the attendant, the writer continues. . . . We search our mirror to see if there isn't something in our features that would appeal to a not-too-discriminating Wyandotte.

A Pullet Needs A Pal

But the writer goes on—"There should be a friendly relationship between the attendant and the birds. Know your birds and have them know you. Be on friendly terms with one another."

And there the writer leaves us flat. "Know your birds?" how is one to really know a chicken—its sorrows, triumphs and dejections—its disagreements with the butcher? How? Must we learn Esperanto?

"Have them know you." . . . Is a formal introduction necessary—or does one simply jump into the pen and say, "Listen, you birds, I'm from Manitoba, and I'm glad to meet up with you." . . . the bulletin is silent on this point.

And that last sentence, "Be on friendly terms with one another." Here, if one reads between the lines correctly, is an insinuation that the ordinary hand-shaking, back slapping, "how's-the-yolks?" sort of thing isn't quite enough. Friendship means more than that, even to a Barred Rock.

Kindness To Cockerels

After thinking it over, we've come to the conclusion that we would treat a chicken as we would treat any other friend, show it around. We'd take it up to the library and show it the list of 70 new books recently purchased by that enterprising board. On Friday night we'd take it over to Mechanics' hall to hear the boys' band at practice.

We'd take the chicken into Aurora's shopping centre and show it what a fool it would be to try to get better value in Toronto. This alone would win the friendship of even a New Hampshire Red.

Then, while we were strolling down Aurora's well-treed avenues and admiring the attractiveness of the homes thereon, we'd let loose with a few elevating facts. We'd tell the chicken of the protection afforded by the Aurora police and fire departments.

We'd tell it about the town's vigilant board of health. We would show it Aurora's schools. Then, after giving it a drink of Aurora water, we'd tell the chicken about the efficient town council, and about its progressive board of trade. We'd show it Aurora's churches and the fine group of men who lead the services therein.

We'd take it to the arena, so that it could see the home of next season's league-leading hockey team. Then after we'd taken it to see the show and had bought it a ticket to the firemen's dance, we'd tell it the big news—that we'd let it live in Aurora.

Talk about friendship! Why, we'd have the chicken laying three times a day . . . out of sheer gratitude!

Council's Aid Asked In Highway Petition

Higher Liability Insurance Premium Likely For Aurora

THREE CHAIRS VACANT

Three vacant chairs yawned at the council chambers on Monday night, and it was thought likely that because of the sparse attendance it would be necessary to hold another council meeting in two weeks' time.

An application asking for the use of Mechanics' hall as a dancing academy once a week was received, and a rate of $5 a day was given. The necessity of heating the hall would make a lower rate impossible, the council felt.

The matter of the town's liability insurance was considered. A representative of the agency who had placed the business last year stated that because of the heavy losses sustained, it would be necessary to raise the premium from $800 to $1,700. It was decided to hold the matter over until the next council meeting.

The Aurora Veterans were given permission to hold a day on Nov. 6 and the council authorized the purchase of a wreath, to be placed on the memorial on Armistice day.

"The course of the creek has been altered by the Canada Packers," Councillor John Stuart stated. "There is a danger of it undermining the road on Tyler St."

"I was asked to go down and look it over after the work had been nearly completed," Mayor Boulding said. "We have found these people congenial to deal with and I am sure they will round off the corner of the creek to protect the road."

A representative from the Central Ontario Highway Association asked the co-operation of the council in circulating a petition for completion of what he described as the last link in the central Ontario highway, the section from Port Perry to Yonge.

wage for pocket money for a six-month period. There will be a two-week period in which both the farmer and the apprentice will be on probation. At the end of the six-month training period, the department will try to place them in employment at regular wages.

"We've got to find the young men," Mr. Cockburn told the council. "The reason that young men of this age will be making more money than they will be offered in this plan, but there might be some who have an idea that they would like to farm but have not had an opportunity to do so."

Young men from 18 to 30 who are not at present employed will be given a chance of an apprenticeship to farm work under a scheme outlined by W. M. Cockburn, agricultural representative, to the council on Monday.

Following the passing of the Canadian Youth Act at the Canadian Youth Congress last year, money has been set aside to train young men in forestry, mining and agriculture. The task of organizing the agricultural end of the money has been turned over to the department of agriculture, Mr. Cockburn stated.

A number of young men in each county will be interviewed and a selection will be made. They will be apprenticed to selected farmers who are capable of training them, and will receive a small

TEACHERS MEET

School teachers of Whitechurch township met here on Friday to consider the new curriculum for public schools. A meeting of the Vaughan township teachers was held in the school here on Monday, for the same purpose.

"The section from No. 12 highway, three miles west of Port Perry to No. 28, just south of Peterboro, has just been approved after a three-week campaign," he said. "The provincial order-in-council was passed on Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The most serious difficulty in the way of the highway has now been removed."

Reports were received from the treasurer, John G. MacDonald and from W. L. Taylor, assessor. Almost $500 in interest has been saved so far this year over a similar period in 1936, the council learned. Both reports will receive further consideration at a later meeting.

The following accounts were passed for payment: R. De La Haye, $11.25; Macnab's Garage, $1.35; F. C. Davis, fire truck, $3; J. F. Willis, $1.50; Aurora Building Co., $81.20; county hospital account, $50.25; Mrs. L. Rogers, $37.50; Waiters service station, $12.03; Ough & Son, $3.60; B. F. Davis, $8.70; Dr. G. W. Williams, $3; Bell Telephone Co., $21.94; postage, $5.26; A. Fleury, trips, $11; county levy, $12,248.64; registry office, $32.50; Hydro account, August, $2,498.15; Geddes service station, $1; F. R. De La Haye, $4.00, $0.75; B. F. Davis, $50.20; King township, $14.20; Bell Telephone Co., $3, $2.75; stamps, $10.

Inspector Asked To Name Police Office Location

Council Seeks Opportunity To Speak On Behalf Of Aurora

The selection of a location for a police office for northern York county has yet to be made, it was learned at the council meeting on Monday.

"I have gone down to the commission two or three times," Mayor Dr. C. R. Boulding told the councillors. "It was to be decided on Sept. 15, but they decided to get Chief Draper of Toronto to appoint an inspector to investigate the choice of towns. This has been done."

"I said that if a commissioner was appointed we must be heard before he made his decision and the warden assured me that we would be allowed to speak. I was afraid the decision might be

Critical Of Strut Of Hitler And Mussolini, Minister Declares

Says Times Change, But Greed, Lust And Hate Remain

"This is a far different world than the world of Jesus' time," Rev. H. W. Strapp told the congregation of the United church on Sunday evening. "People want more today than what life has offered before."

"But the problems of today are similar to those of yesterday," the minister stated. "Greed, hate and lust were things that Jesus faced and they are the things that you and I must face."

"I noticed a picture of Mussolini and Hitler in a recent newspaper," he said. "I was a bit critical of the strut of those men. I went back to an old history book and looked at the likenesses of some of the leaders of times

School has at last got under way. It is hoped that no further infantile paralysis epidemic.

Mrs. J. Brydon returned home last week after a month's stay with friends in Lindsay.

Mrs. C. Stonehouse of Preston was a recent visitor at the home of Mrs. W. Stonehouse, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. H. Breddon.

Miss Lorna Dillane spent Sunday at her home here.

Miss Lucy Fox, who underwent an operation in a Toronto hospital some weeks ago, is progressing very slowly at present.

CELEBRATE 53 YEARS SERVICE

"Taking the church seriously," Park's Sunday morning sermon at the Baptist church. "We ought to take the church seriously," he said, "when we know that Christ built the church for the benefit of man."

The sermon, which marked the celebration of the 53rd anniversary of the church here, will be concluded on Wednesday evening at the church fellowship meeting. In addition to the usual musical service there was a solo by Mrs. Frank Griffith.

"The hour of supreme glory" was the subject of the evening sermon.

Communion service concluded the regular service in the morning. It was the most largely attended communion, the pastor stated, since his arrival in Aurora.

There will be a special Thanksgiving service on Sunday morning. When the pastor will speak on "Thanksgiving and Thanksgiving." The fellowship meetings which have been held on Friday evenings will now be held in the church hall on Wednesday evenings at 8 o'clock.

NURSE GRADUATES

Miss W. M. Bellman of Aurora was one of the seven St. John's Hospital nurses who graduated on Tuesday. The ceremony was held at St. John's Convalescent Hospital at Newtonbrook.

QUEENSVILLE

HORSES TAKE FAIR AWARDS

Two percheron horses from the stables of J. B. Aylward and Son, were successful at Markham fair last week when "Gay Paree" brought home a first prize and "Monchy" took a second.

Next Sunday evening the Y.P.U. will be conducted by the missionary convenor, Miss Winnie Simpkins. A fine program is promised and a welcome is extended to all.

Miss Lorna Pearson left on Monday to attend the Ontario College of Education in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Wright, formerly of Queensville, also Mr. and Mrs. Eade of Aurora, were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Linskill last week.

The Queensville Women's Institute held their last meeting at the home of Miss Frances Cranley on Sept. 29. After the business completed, Mrs. F. Milne read a paper on agriculture and Mrs. Joe Watson sang a solo. Miss Cranley supplied a contest that was enjoyed by everyone.

MAGIC

a few dollars a month transforms your home

From 6 months to 5 years to pay under the HOME IMPROVEMENT PLAN

Here is magic that is open to any home owner: magic that brings comfort and convenience; magic that protects property and adds to its life and value; magic that creates jobs for men who need them. You, too, can put it to work as thousands of other home owners have done. Re-facing and painting; new roof; insulation; a modern heating system; a planned kitchen; a fire-escape; new plumbing; or wiring; an extra room in basement or attic or a heated garage will fit into your budget with surprising ease. Any contractor, supply firm or architect can help you arrange a Home Improvement Plan loan, or you can apply direct to your banker.

Bethel

(Sept. 30)
Any who attended either morning or evening at Bethel church on Sept. 19 had great praise for the committee of management, as everything went without a jar, and a real "thank you" was given by the pastor to all who so willingly gave their help to making this day the success which it proved to be.

The sister churches of the adjoining circuits were all represented, Sutton, Keswick, Ravenshoe, Uxbridge and Egypt, thus showing a good feeling in the work—and also proving that in "union is strength."

Mr. Vaughan Blewman, the speaker at both services, held the keen interest of the congregation. Thinking of the choir and Mr. Butler for their assistance, which was certainly worth-while, Mr. Blewman told the people how Rev. J. A. Miller had called him the evening before, and on hearing of his intention for the coming day, sent a message to his friends at Bethel.

Mr. Blewman's discourse on Sunday evening was to young people on the subject, "This way please." One selection by the choir, "Listening to the voice of Jesus" was well rendered, assisted by Mrs. Pollock of Ravenshoe, and was very beautiful.

6th Con., N. G.

(Sept. 30)
The month of September is slipping out with beautiful weather. In fact, the whole month has been very fair, with an occasional shower and not too much hot weather.

Farmers are getting on nicely with plenty of work, and few holidays. Fall wheat sowing and early fall threshing are pretty well finished.

The September weddings are quite numerous. The one last Saturday in Sutton United church, when Miss Lillian Park, R.N., took the matrimonial vows, was attended by a number from this vicinity and was a pretty and impressive ceremony.

The centre aisle was nicely seated with relatives and guests. Friends join in wishing a happy, prosperous life to the young couple.

Miss Smith of Uxbridge has been the guest of Miss Olive Thompson for a few days.

Mrs. Hoffman of Thornhill, formerly Miss Audrey Mann, is spending a few days at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ivan Mann.

Mrs. Holstock, formerly Miss Myrtle Cooper, of Birchcliffe, Toronto, returned home on Saturday after having been at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wilkinson in Belhaven.

The light frosts lately are helping to make the maples and other trees and shrubs put on their fall dress.

Summer cottagers are, in many cases, delaying returning to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Norris, Queensville, and Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Huntley, are invited to visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Noble, Little Britain, this week.

Members of W. M. S. of the Bethel appointment are accepting the invitation to the annual conference of the W. M. S. held in Sutton United, on Sept. 30.

Sandford

(Sept. 30)
The Y. P. S. held a very successful weimer social last Tuesday at William Cain's. Around the fire games were played and community songs were sung lustily by 60 voices.

Ashworth

(Sept. 30)
Anniversary services were held at the United church on Sept. 19 when Rev. F. W. Madden preached inspiring sermons to large congregations. The choir rendered anthems which were much appreciated as were the solos by Helen Bibby. The church was nicely decorated with autumn flowers.

Sharon

(Sept. 30)
The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be held in the United church on Sunday evening at the close of the evening service at 7.30 p.m. Will all the members please try and be present.

Mr. Lorne Evans and Miss Helen Evans of White Rose visited Mrs. John Tate on Sunday.

Sunday-school will be held at 10 a.m. on Sunday morning.

Miss Blanche Hall is spending a week in Sutton with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Barton Ward.

The next meeting of the Women's Institute will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Tate on Wednesday at 3 p.m. Roll call: If I could have one more labor-saving device, what would it be. A temperance paper will be given by Mrs. McCrea of Sharon. Discussion: How could temperance be taught most effectively? Demonstration: cake and recipe by Mrs. Elmer Fry and Mrs. Frank Tate. Refreshment committee: Mrs. David Coates and Mrs. Parker, sandwiches.

Sharon, Sept. 30—The Women's Hobby Club met last week at Mrs. W. Wilmut's home, Sharon, with a splendid attendance. The roll-call was answered by "a well-balanced color scheme." A splendid discussion took place on co-operation and the possibility of a store being started in Newmarket, led by Mrs. A. Dike. Mrs. A. Brenair led the discussion on the care of plants and shrubs for winter. The question box followed.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. W. Fountain on Oct. 20.

Mrs. Norman Porter and Mrs. R. Scott of Thornhill spent Thursday at Mrs. Wilmut's, Mrs. Porter staying for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Evans accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thompson of Newmarket, visited the Watsons at Rayner on Sunday.

Several from this district will attend the shower given to the bride-to-be, Miss Dorothy Ham-say, at Mrs. Alan Shaw's, Sharon, this afternoon.

The Hinder home was looked up for electricity recently.

Rev. A. J. Forte made several calls on Wednesday.

Mr. Harry Mount left this week for Guelph to study veterinary work at the O.A.C.

Mrs. Wilmut, Agnes, and Ruth, accompanied by Mrs. Phillips of Sharon expect to leave for Kingston tomorrow to attend the Jackson-Gates wedding.

Mount Pleasant

(Sept. 30)
The farmers are busy filling their silos since the light frosts there have been lately.

Miss Iva Stiles, R.N., is spending a few days in the city.

George Fairbairn has been re-modelling the inside of his house to accommodate two families.

A very successful Ladies' Aid meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Bernard Davidson, over 50 sitting down to supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wright and son, and Mr. Wright's mother, Mrs. John Wright, of Seabridge, Mr. and Mrs. Chesley Scott of Sutton, and Mrs. Albert Rose, Carl and Nellie of Newmarket, spent Sunday at Mr. Robt. Davidson's home.

The Anglican church are holding their thanksgiving services on Sunday in the morning and evening.

KEEPING MONEY EMPLOYED

Wealth may be accumulated either by employing labour or by employing money, which in turn is again used to employ labour.

Few individuals can employ labour, but everyone may employ money.

When you deposit your money in a savings account in The Bank of Toronto, it is employed, earning interest which increases your capital until the time comes when you have a sufficient sum and the opportunity to make a permanent investment.

The Correction of Charles
A school teacher, after examination of the pupils in her class by the school nurse, wrote the following note to the parents of a certain little boy:

"Your boy, Charles, shows signs of astigmatism. Will you please investigate, and take steps to correct it?"

The next morning she received a reply from the boy's father, who wrote:

"I don't exactly understand what Charles has done, but I have walloped him tonight, and you can wallop him tomorrow. That ought to help some."

HYDRO IS YOURS.....USE IT!

THE SHOW MUST GO ON!

There is an unwritten law in the theatrical profession. Regardless of what happens—"the show must go on!" In thousands of theatres throughout Ontario this same traditional rule still applies, but in a different way. Today, "the show must go on!"—with Hydro.

The "Talkies" and Hydro, bring to the cities and the small towns alike, the best theatre offers in drama, music, comedy, while travelogues and news-reels bring a new form of education.

Hydro also makes it possible to enjoy your theatre night right through the hottest season, with the aid of air conditioning and cooling systems, which the majority of theatres now provide.

This same Hydro service that is essential for the "Talkies" is also necessary for night baseball, tennis, lawn bowling and other forms of night entertainment and sport, which electricity now makes it possible to enjoy to a much greater degree.

Thus in the realm of entertainment and sport—as in so many other phases of activity—Hydro—your Hydro—makes an essential contribution to a better, happier, healthier livelihood for the people of the Province of Ontario with its low-cost power.

The success of Hydro in being able to lower power costs in the past two years in the face of a general increase in the price of practically everything we use, is a noteworthy achievement. Its continuous efforts to lower these power costs still further, and extend the benefits which accrue throughout the Province of Ontario, is a matter in which you should be vitally interested.

CHAPTER 20

The Pot-of-Gold Rainbow Fades

If Lindy Lou expected Lee to begin a campaign of intense love-making she was disappointed. A change did come about in their relations, but it was rather in the direction of greater companionship than in any kind of definite courtship. Lindy Lou didn't know it, but Lee was a man who not only knew how to fight for what he wanted but also how to wait until he got it, often a much more difficult feat of accomplishment.

The morning after the adventure at Twooaks Lindy Lou slept late. About 11 Mrs. Jackson knocked at her door and came in. "I hear you had a right good time last night," she said smiling. "Oh, I did, a wonderful time."

"Good as you could have up there in New York?" Mrs. Jackson wanted to know. "Better, lots better," Lindy Lou answered.

"Well, I always say its the people that make the place and not the place the people," Mrs. Jackson declared. "And you won't find a nicer bunch of folks anywhere than right in Threeforks. And if you can name me a likelier man than Lee Beverly, I'd like to hear it."

Lindy Lou wondered what Mrs. Jackson would say if she were to confess her engagement to Anton. "She'd think me a hussy," Lindy Lou thought to herself. "The way they're all proud of Lee is almost pathetic."

"He stopped by early this morning to ask how you were," Mrs. Jackson went on. "He said to tell you he'd come to Dalton for the day, but he'd come by early tomorrow to take you horseback riding. Said for me to get you up about 6 o'clock, because he wanted to ride before the sun got high."

"That's a sort of high-handed invitation," Lindy Lou remarked from her pillow. "Don't tell me you don't like it."

Mrs. Jackson came back. "I reckon there never was a girl didn't like a man to take her high hand with her now and then."

Lindy Lou dressed slowly. In the wastebasket lay the crumpled telegram from Anton. Something troubled the back of Lindy Lou's mind. Why had Anton wired so peremptorily for her return? And why had Lee spoken twice about the message, as though it held some special significance to him?

Lindy Lou couldn't figure it out, and yet she felt vaguely that there was some connection between the two circumstances.

She spent the afternoon as usual at Twooaks, netting nothing again as the result of her search. Very soon there would be hardly a spot on the place she hadn't pried into after that elusive treasure. She went to bed early and dreamed uneasily of bags and bags of golden coins, so many that she couldn't count them. But they didn't seem to belong to her, for when she stretched out her hand toward them they moved away out of reach.

Mrs. Jackson had quite a time waking her but once Lindy Lou was up she found herself enjoying the sparkling morning air. Lee was waiting when she came down and had brought the roan in on a halter for Lindy Lou. Very carefully he adjusted the stirrups for her, showed her how to sit firmly but easily in the saddle, and started off at a walk.

They rode for only an hour that morning but Lindy Lou was too stiff from the unaccustomed exercise, but on the mornings that followed they fared farther and farther afield. Lindy Lou knew how it Lee's cheerful face, the gentle but spirited horses nuzzling her hand for the carrots Lee told her to give them, the walk through the village streets, then the swift trot up the hill, and the long level gallop for two miles along the road.

"Another week and I'll start to teach you to jump," Lee told her, "then we can ride cross country and not bother much about fences."

"Do you think I can learn?" Lindy Lou asked eagerly. "I'm sure of it. You like it, and you've got a good seat. We'll take an easy little hurdle I know of, about two feet, beginning tomorrow."

"I've been here nearly three weeks now," said Lindy Lou, "and while I've had the best time I've ever had in my life I don't seem to be any nearer finding the treasure. I'll have to go back at the end of next week. My vacation was only a month you know."

Lee's face lengthened. "Gosh, I forgot you had to go back to work. Your mamma and papa aren't coming down at all then."

"No mamma writes that papa isn't strong enough to make the trip, and then he has to go back to work, too, you know."

"Well," said Lee, "a lot can happen in a week," and he smiled as though he knew some pleasant secret.

"Lee," Lindy Lou said suddenly, "do you honestly believe there's treasure at Twooaks?"

"I've asked myself that, Lindy Lou, more than once. I know old Pearl was as honest a colored woman as ever lived. But she was mighty old when she died, and she got queer notions toward the last. One thing I'm sure of, she never mentioned treasure to a living soul down here, or I'd have heard of it."

"Well, I don't see how she could have had Twooaks overrun with folks with picks and shovels. I think she must have known of something, but what it was I can't pretend to say."

Lindy Lou nodded. "And you think those prowlers are somebody that somehow got hold of my map up north. I don't see how they could have, but maybe they did. I've never shown you that map, Lee, because I thought it would be unlucky for me to let any one else see it. But I'm going to keep on hunting the rest of the week and then if I don't find anything why I'm going to give you that map before I go back north."

"Thanks," said Lee. "I haven't much time to go treasure hunting, but if ever I do find anything it will be yours, you know."

"We'll go halves," said Lindy Lou gaily. "Come on, let's gallop. I'll race you to that tree."

Lee let her win the race and in high good humor they turned back to the village. The rocking-chair brigade was out in full force as they arrived as they were every morning. They lived over their own romances again, these old ladies, in the adventure of seeing Lindy Lou swung down from her horse by Lee's strong arms. They dreamed of weddings and happy families as he came up the walk with Lindy Lou, and stopped to tell them all good morning.

This morning Mrs. Jackson came out on the porch. "There's a special delivery for you," she told the girl. "It's from New York. Hope none of your family's sick, Lindy Lou."

Lindy Lou took the letter. She knew the handwriting. It was Anton's.

"It's not from my family," she said slowly. "It's—it's just business, from my office."

She told Lee good-bye and went up to her room. She laid the letter over her writing table and it stared at her in Anton's dashing hand while she changed from her riding habit into a dress. Then with reluctance she picked it up and slowly tore the flap.

"Might as well get the agony over," said Lindy Lou aloud, and she began to read the letter, an expression of amazement spreading over her face as she read.

Lindy Lou read the letter through once and let it drop in her lap. It was a terribly bitter letter and it added to Lindy Lou's discomfort in that she did not have an entirely clear conscience. She had gone about a great deal with Lee; she had written only a few times to Anton, and those times were notes after her first long letter of explanations. She picked Anton's letter up again and read it through steadily, trying to put herself in his place and to understand sympathetically what had led him to write in this way.

"Dearest Lindy Lou," ran the letter; "I suppose you won't mind my still addressing you that way, though I can't say that I think it will please you particularly. I returned to New York a few days ago and telephoned your mother, who told me she had no idea when you would return and seemed put out that you hadn't gone to visit your aunt, as you told me you were going to, and as you told me you were going to."

"I am surprised to find you telling all these lies to people, Lindy Lou. I thought you were anything but a deceitful girl. I thought you were different; that you wanted to please me, and that you would do what I said. I was sure that when I sent you that telegram you would leave for New York at once and I expected to find you here waiting for me."

"Don't think for a minute that I am taken in by that talk of a treasure. If there were any treasure hidden at your old house it would have been in the papers long ago. I know there must be a fellow you like down there or you wouldn't stay so long; maybe a fellow you've known since you were a kid, or maybe you are using me to make him jealous, but don't forget that you are engaged to me, and that I won't stand for any other fellow fooling around my girl. And you can't two-time me either, Lindy Lou."

"You can take your choice. I want you to come back to New York at once. (This was underscored heavily.) And if that isn't plain, why it means take the first train you can get, and make it a fast one. But if this isn't plain enough for you, I'll tell you what will happen. If you don't take a train right away, I'm coming down there to get you. And I won't be any too easy with that young fellow, whoever he is, who's been fooling around with you. Do you get it, Lindy Lou? Either you come back at once or I come down for you."

"I've never thought you would treat me this way, Lindy Lou. I've never planned we might be married sooner than I said, and I worked awfully hard on this trip of mine and got through ahead of time. I can't forget that night we got engaged. If you hadn't been so sweet then I wouldn't bother about you now. So, come home at once or you'll see me down there in a couple of days."

"Send me a telegram as soon as you get this letter. And don't forget what I told you about loving you and how you said you loved me and had loved me for a long time. Be sure to send the telegram. Your Anton."

There were flourishes in the letter, Lee underscored, and a row of XXX for kisses along the bottom of the last page, which struck Lindy Lou as being very silly after the manner in which Anton had written. Lindy Lou tore the letter into little pieces and dropped them in the wastebasket. Then she got out her snapshot of Anton and looked at it a long time.

CHAPTER 21
Between Two Love Fires

Lindy Lou's conscience stirred acutely. She had let this friendly open air companionship with Lee drive Anton out of her mind. She had even come to look upon her search for the treasure with less enthusiasm since the morning idea began. She stared at the snapshot until Anton himself, tall and dark and handsome seemed to materialize before her. All the months of worshipping him from afar, the memory of his passionate love making, the envy of the other girls when they knew he had taken her out—everything desirable and attractive about him seemed to plead his cause.

"I've been mean," Lindy Lou said aloud to the snapshot, "a pretty poor sort of a person."

"I came down here engaged to a man I'd been crazy about for two years. And I came down here after he'd asked me not to come. I wanted to find a treasure so we could be married sooner. Then I began to play around with Lee and I've known for some time that he was falling in love with me, and I've made Anton unhappy, and I'm going to make Lee unhappy, and I'm a pretty—bad girl," and at this Lindy Lou's head went down and she began to cry, overwhelmed by her own wickedness, the forsaking of everything she had been taught to think right and good.

She cried for quite a while and when her sobs grew quieter she found she was thinking a great deal more of Lee than of Anton and her own misbehavior. More than once she thought knocked at her mind, "If it hadn't been for Anton—"

But when it grew too insistent Lindy Lou jumped to her feet and seized a pencil and paper. She wrote rapidly, "Anton. Homeless care of Swatland Inc., New York City. Leaving here tomorrow morning and will explain everything when I see you. All my love, Lindy Lou."

Then she washed her face, changed her dress and marched down to the telegraph office. She found she could connect with a train for New York by taking the local from Threeforks that left at the early hour of 5.30 the next morning and she had the ticket office make a reservation for her.

Then she considered what she had better do next. She intended to devote most of the day to a final intensive search of Twooaks. She would have to tell Lee she was leaving, and Lindy Lou hated to do this. But it wouldn't be fair not to tell him, and if he wanted her to go out that night she could say she had to go to bed early because of that morning train.

She walked back to Mrs. Jackson's and called the Beeches. Ellen Marie answered.

"No'm, Miss Lindy Lou, he ain't here. He's gone over to Dalton on business, say he ain't be back till late. Yass'm I'll tell him—call you soon he come in, but it gona be late, Miss Lindy Lou, maybe 9, maybe 10 o'clock tonight. He say he's got a letter for you."

Lindy Lou hung up with an unreasoning feeling of disappointment. Of late Lee had seemed to feel their morning rides together, and an occasional chat during the days at Twooaks was all the time he could spend with Lindy Lou. She had a feeling, too, that he did not trust himself to be alone with her in the evening and she had respected this feeling. She had felt a trifle uncertain of herself as well. To hear him speak again of his dream of having her at the Beeches—his wife—no, Lindy Lou didn't think the memory of Anton nor her promise to him could resist Lee's tenderness if this happened again.

"Well," said Lindy Lou to herself, "I'd better be getting out to the Twooaks—this is my last day to search." And suddenly her face was filled with hope again. "This last day," she thought, "surely she would find the clue sometime during these next hours."

Lindy Lou went rather slowly through the short cut to Twooaks. She was thinking of what she now called her wasted vacation. It seemed hard to realize that less than four weeks ago she had come so hopefully along this path. And in that time nothing, save the morning happenings, had advanced her aims. Lee had, unfortunately, fallen in love with her—Lindy Lou thought of his arrival at Twooaks and finding her at the old well curb—and she had unfortunately encouraged him more than she had meant to.

Lindy Lou went in the gate. Mose was sitting disconsolately in the shade of the porch. To Lindy Lou's good morning he turned and asked, "Gray face?"

"No'm," Miss Lindy Lou, "mornin'."

"What's the matter, Mose, you look like you didn't feel well."

"I don't, Miss Lindy Lou. I feel terrible. I got misery in my back won't let me stand up straight. I didn't scarcely sleep at all last night, seems like I ought to get back in bed this minute," and he groaned and put his hand to his back where the pain was.

"Why, Mose, I'm awfully sorry. You go right on back to the Beeches and go to bed. I wouldn't have you stay here for anything, feeling the way you do."

"No, ma'am, I can't do that. Mr. Lee be mighty mad with me for sure."

"Nonsense, Mr. Lee never asked you to work your life when you didn't feel like it, did he?"

"No, ma'am. But he still said there, miserable and immovable, and Lindy Lou knew that he wouldn't go as long as she remained."

"See here, Mose, I'm not going to stay here long today. The fact is I'm going back to New York tomorrow and I can't come out to get a few things I've left here. So you go along and if

MOUNT ALBERT W.I. WINS 2ND PRIZES AT FAIR

The Women's Institute will hold their next meeting at the home of Miss Leek next Thursday. There will be a prize given for best essay by a public school pupil on "A noted Canadian". There will be current events and music and the roll call will be a notable Canadian. The hostesses are Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Stokes. The Draper and Steeper families and Miss Tillie Dunn attended the wedding of Miss Jean Draper and Mr. W. H. Richards on Wednesday of last week in the chapel of Deer Park church, Toronto, with the reception at the Old Mill, on the Humber. A number from here attended Markham fair on Saturday. The Women's Institute had an exhibit but were only successful in winning two second prizes. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Slorach motored to Montreal on Friday to meet Mr. Slorach's sister, Mrs. Ross Johnson, of Sandford, who returned from a very fine visit to her parents in Scotland. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wagg and Jimmie of Picton were in town over the weekend. Mount Albert cemetery directors have completed their new fence, which is a credit to any cemetery and one that will last. The collection of vegetables and canned fruit and other provisions for the west will have to be in on Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, Oct. 12 and 13. Posters have been put around the town in regard to these and it is hoped everyone will contribute to this very worthy cause. This community has been blessed with an abundance this year, and should help those who have not.

Mrs. W. R. Steeper spent the week-end with friends in Markham. Mr. Laurie Wagg of Markham was at the home of his sister, Mrs. Leadbetter, a few days this week.

Hartman church are having an oyster supper next Wednesday. Mount Albert United church is having anniversary services on Oct. 31 and their hot supper will be held on Nov. 3.

Following Varied Career As Teacher, J. W. Brown Dies

Of U. E. L. Descent, Well Known School Teacher Dies Suddenly

"I know of no one in my recent acquaintance who had more of the quality of goodness," Rev. Dr. D. McIntyre said in tribute to the late J. W. Brown at a memorial service in the Presbyterian church on Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Byron Snell, Aurora, who had known Mr. Brown's family for many years, and Rev. James Taylor took part in the service. Interment was made at St. Mary's today.

Mr. Brown died early Tuesday following an operation at York County hospital on Monday. He went into the hospital on Saturday night for an operation which he did not regard as serious, but for which his strength did not prove sufficient.

Born in north Oxford county on Nov. 18, 1873, the son of Emily Griffin and Thomas B. Brown, Mr. Brown was a teacher most of his life. He was of United Empire Loyalist stock. He was educated at a country school, and at St. Mary's Collegiate. He attended Stratford model school in 1891 and taught the following year. In 1896 he attended normal school in Toronto.

He taught in many different schools in that part of the province and in 1928 began teaching school section four, Markham, in 1931 school section three, Whitchurch, at Bogartown, his last school. He was for about three years without employment and during the last year he had been selling books and Era subscriptions.

Mr. Brown was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian choir and was active in the Sunday-school and other work of the church. His widow, Myrtle Senn, survives, and three brothers, F. B. Brown, Toronto, C. L. Brown, Hamilton Y.M.C.A. secretary, and W. E. C. Brown, Stratford, and one sister, Mrs. L. W. Sovereign, Grimsby.

REVIVAL SERVICES ARE IN PROGRESS

The revival services in progress at the Church of the Nazarene are increasing in attendance and interest. Rev. Chas. Strait and wife, of Lansing, Mich., are the special workers and they are presenting the Gospel truth in an interesting way. These meetings continue every night except Saturday.

Rev. Chas. Strait is an excellent speaker and will bring timely subjects. He has been greatly used in starting new churches.

Mrs. Lennie Strait is a sweet singer of gospel songs, and accompanies herself on the harp. She will be giving illustrated messages to the children and young people.

The Henderson sisters trio from the Dunkard Church at Gormley will sing on Thursday night. These girls are well known and many will be glad to hear them sing again.

The local church is putting forth every effort to make this revival series the best.

ZEPHYR Y. P. S. LAUNCH YEAR'S WORK

The Young People's Society met last Friday evening in the Sunday-school for the purpose of electing officers for the year. There was a good attendance and matters were discussed relative to the welfare of the society. With the new executive and the adoption of the proposed program, the society looks forward to a successful year.

A box of vegetables and fruits is being sent from Uxbridge on Oct. 13 to Saskatchewan to help the needy there. An appeal is made to all in the community to help. These vegetables and fruits will be collected in the basement of Zephyr community hall on Oct. 12 and taken by truck to Uxbridge. Every family in the community is expected to help. Potatoes, carrots, cabbage, turnips, apples, etc., are being sent.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers of Newmarket spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. Miller. Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Galbraith of Aurora visited Mr. Galbraith's parents here on Sunday.

Mrs. E. Profit, who has been in Toronto for several weeks, returned to her home on Sunday.

Billy Armstrong went to Toronto on Sunday with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Shields. Mrs. J. W. Rynard has returned home from Toronto where she spent a week with her daughter.

Ashworth

An interesting service was held at Ashworth United church last Sunday when the topic of the sermon was "Ye are my witnesses." The choir sang an anthem, "Praise Him who reigns," and Mrs. Blackburn and Iva Blackburn sang a duet, "The Ivory Palace." Next Sunday the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed. An invitation is extended to all in the community to attend these services held every Sunday at 11.15. A junior choir will sing next Sunday.

Ashworth community is asked to help fill the car of vegetables being sent from Uxbridge on Oct. 13 to the needy in the west.

Era printing is delivered promptly.

Smart Styles Modelled At Band's Fashion Show

Lovely Dresses And Accessories Shown By Local Stores

The fashion show, attractively staged by the R.S.A. Bugle Band in the town hall last Thursday night, was a very successful event, both from the point of view of the band and of the audience.

John O. Little was the very competent chairman and Dr. C. E. VanderVoort read the descriptions, as the models appeared, in his excellent style.

The models pleasingly showed the smartest styles from the local clothes.

For Lindenbaum's Miss Pearl Donner modelled a green crinkled satin dress with drape neckline and coat of fine boucle trimmed with black Persian lamb. The coat was tailored by Mrs. I. Lindenbaum.

Miss Sadie Foster, Aurora, for the same store, modelled a green wool boucle suit with double silver fox neckpiece.

Leonard Hansler wore a full dress outfit tailored by I. Lindenbaum. The outfit was complete with a silk opera hat. Miss Elsie McCarter smartly modelled a beautiful Victorian style black moire evening gown with billowed gores. She wore gold accessories and an evening wrap of black velvet, white satin lined, with collar of white lapin.

Bill Lindenbaum modelled a smart brown street-wear outfit. The coat was a single-breasted smart drape model, with tapering sleeve, drape trousers and short combination vest. He also showed a double-breasted drape model overcoat.

For Chandler's little Miss Pearl Gunn modelled a yellow smoked silk dress and little Miss Ruth Deavitt modelled a silk frilled dress. Mrs. Tom Leach modelled a one-piece knitted suit in red currant botany wool with egg-shell short sleeve sweater, and velvet hat of the same shade.

Modelling a black afternoon dress of silk tricot with white dots, from Chandler's Mrs. Leach wore shoes and purse from Hooker's.

Among the attractive garments modelled for Hooker's by Miss Eleanor Elvidge was a party frock of pink taffeta, with detachable jacket, which with jacket removed became a formal evening gown.

For the Arcade Store Mrs. W. R. Galbraith modelled a smart black French velvet coat with squirrel collar, and a navy blue chiffon dress with hand embroidery on the shoulders. Miss Ruth Palmateer, for the same store, modelled a coat of green-flecked llama, with a stand-up collar of Persian lamb.

For the Arcade Store Miss Geraldine Wainman modelled an evening dress with bias cut skirt.

HOLD SUPPER OCT. 15

The annual hot supper of Bogartown Community Club will be held at the school on Friday evening, Oct. 15. A good program will be provided. Adults 30 cents. Children 15 cents. c2w35

AUXILIARY PLANS BAZAAR

The Evangeline auxiliary of Trinity United church will meet next Tuesday night at 8 p.m. in the church parlors. This is the fall thank-offering meeting and it is hoped that all members will be present. Dec. 3 is the date set for the bazaar.

JUNIOR AID WILL MEET

The Junior Ladies' Aid of the Christian church will meet at the home of Miss Gertrude Menar, 65 Prospect Ave., on Wednesday evening, Oct. 13. All members are requested to be present.

MRS. HAINES WILL SPEAK

The W.A. of St. Paul's church will hold their monthly devotional and business meeting at 3 p.m. in the chapel next Thursday afternoon, Oct. 14, when the deanery officer, Mrs. Haines of Sharon, will give an address.

The W.A. has decided that owing to the expense incurred in the collection of wastepaper and magazines they will postpone the collection until early next spring, and hope all their friends who have so kindly assisted them in the past, will save their papers for the spring collection. Later in the month the W.A. will ship a bale of warm clothing for the needy in the drought area and will be glad of any contributions.

Era printing prices are reasonable.

high shirred bodice and puff sleeves, with pearl accessories from Wainman's jewelry shop.

Miss Lillian Daniels for Eves' modelled a dress coat with black Persian lamb trim, and a dress in cinnamon pitter pat crepe, with tiers of circular fringe covering all of the dress. Miss Kathleen VanZant modelled a dress coat with black fox fur and Misses Gwenneth Smith and Joan Nesbitt modelled young girls' dresses.

For McGregor's, Lorne McNertney effectively modelled single and double-breasted suits, a tuxedo, a topcoat and an overcoat in popular styles.

For Kates', Misses Irene Tibbett and Alice Cullen smartly modelled evening gowns and coats, with attractive accessories from Lundy's.

Perrin's supplied flowers for the show floor. Roadhouse & Rose loaned furniture, and A. N. Belugin's orchestra gave a delightful program of music.

FIRE Prevention Week Oct. 3 to 9

The best place for fire prevention to start is in the home. Charity should start there according to the ancient saying, and certainly safety should come first. In order to safeguard the home, inspection should be made, not only Fire Prevention Week but periodically throughout the year. All heating and lighting equipment examined, chimney and pipes kept clean of soot. No smoke pipes permitted through combustible walls; disposition of ashes safeguarded.

The fuse cabinet should be of metal or asbestos lined. Fuses in all fuse blocks, none of them bridged, and not over 15 ampere fuses used in branch circuits. All drop cords should be insulated, and not supported on any conductive material. Electric irons always detached when not in use and kept on metal stands.

Matches should be kept out of the reach of children and the children should be regularly taught the danger of fire and not to play with matches.

Closets should be kept clean and all rubbish removed from the entire premises. Cleanliness is next to godliness. Perhaps that is the reason it always plays such an important part in fire prevention.
